Smithsonian Returns to St. Peter

The Minnesota Humanities Center and the Minnesota Indian Affairs Council are collaborating with the National Museum of the American Indian on an exhibit exploring American Indian treaties in Minnesota. This traveling exhibition, which recounts the history of treaties between the Indian nations of this area and the United States from the

Gustavus and Society Partnership to Focus on 1862

In January 2012, the sesquicentennial of the 1862 war, Dr. Elizabeth Baer, a Professor of English at Gustavus Adolphus, and Society Director Ben Leonard will offer a one-month intensive course at Gustavus Adolphus College on that conflict. The course will meet daily and will include readings, discussion, field trips to important sites, and a lecture series.

Student work will culminate in the creation of a traveling exhibit that will be available at no cost to libraries, schools, and non-profits across the Minnesota River Valley. The exhibit is expected to travel throughout 2012 and into 2013.

Perhaps the most exciting component of the partnership is a lecture series that’s free and open to the public. “We are very lucky to have the opportunity to have speakers of this high quality and stature come together in St. Peter,” says Leonard. Funds are still being sought, but Gustavus Adolphus College, through their special Partnership continued on page 3

Director’s Column

I think you can tell by reading our newsletter, and this one is no exception, that partnerships are pretty important to the Society. They come in all forms, shapes, and sizes—but they’re all vital in allowing us to offer the breadth and depth of service that we do.

We really appreciate the partnership we have with our donors and members; volunteers and Minnesota Valley Action Council; program partnerships with the Arts Center, Gustavus, public libraries, and more; Nicollet County, the City of St. Peter, and our townships; the Carl and Verna Schmidt Foundation and other funders; with the Minnesota Historical Society and state historic sites; and a long list of others like the St. Peter Public Schools, Women Celebrating Women, and Connecting Nicollet County. Thank you so much.

A sports columnist once compared the National Hockey League to RC Cola. He said RC Cola makes a fine beverage. They’ll never be Pepsi or Coke, but that’s okay, because they make a great drink. In his mind the NHL will never be the NFL, NBA or Major League Baseball—and that’s okay.

I think the Nicollet County Historical Society is a lot like RC Cola too. We do a fine job. We’ll never have the budget of larger museums, but that’s okay. It’s our job to make the best product we can, and provide our customers with a great experience.

While there’s always more to do, and always things that slip through the cracks, I think we’ve been pulling our weight. I like our beverage. I’m proud of it.

We couldn’t do it without our partners. We couldn’t do it without you. And for Nicollet County, there is no Pepsi or Coke. Without partnering to preserve our shared heritage and history, no one else will do it. If you have ideas or suggestions for things that need doing, fixing, changing, or preserving, please let us know. We count on you more ways than you know.

Thanks!
Ben Leonard, Director

Smithsonian’s New Harmonies Makes Successful Run in St. Peter

The Society would like to especially thank the Arts Center of Saint Peter and the Minnesota Humanities Center for making it possible to bring New Harmonies to Nicollet County. We hope all of you had a chance to see the exhibit that left on a truck for Evansville, Minnesota on June 14th.

NCHS Director Ben Leonard said, “This was a first for us, but a huge success. It was a real pleasure to bring a high-caliber national exhibit to St. Peter. I really feel like the partnerships and community connections we forged during those eight weeks will have an impact that lasts for years to come.”

The Arts Center and society collaborated on many diverse programs during the exhibit—from a traditional Somali musical performance, to a bluegrass concert, to a film documentary series.

The exhibit concluded with the St. Peter Ambassador’s Blues Fest in Minnesota Square Park on June 11th. In all, the exhibit and programs served over 2,025 people!

New Harmonies: Celebrating American Roots Music is part of Museum on Main Street, a collaboration between the Smithsonian Institution and state humanities councils nationwide. Support for Museum on Main Street has been provided by the United States Congress, with additional support provided by a Minnesota Historical Society Arts and Cultural Heritage Fund Partnership Grant.

Vogelpohl and Spaeth Organs in Nicollet County

New Ulm, Minnesota residents Hermann Vogelpohl and Jacob Spaeth formed a partnership that would produce over 100 organs from 1890 until Hermann’s death in 1919. The organs were built for schools and churches all over the Midwest. The firm, which was never incorporated into a formal business, became one of the industry’s most respected and renowned.

About 30 of the Vogelpohl and Spaeth organs are known to remain. Nicollet County has five of them: Immanuel Lutheran Church near Courtland, Trinity Lutheran in Nicollet, Bernadotte Lutheran Church, and Saint George Catholic Church.

Organs represented a large investment for a church and its parishioners. One Vogelpohl and Spaeth organ installed in 1906 cost $1,000—over $160,000 today using current wage and labor statistics.

Rural Minnesota churches were a melting pot of musical and cultural traditions. Immigrants brought with them songs and hymns from the old country, but the music continued to change and evolve, to celebrate the growing community and family ties here in Nicollet County.
Minnesota Disasters to Wreak Havoc on Treaty Site

We’re excited to announce that the traveling Minnesota Historical Society exhibit, Minnesota Disasters, will be on display at the Treaty Site March 31st 2012 through May 28th 2012. The exhibit will feature the 1998 St. Peter tornado as well as many other disasters, and how those events continue to shape our lives.

Funded by the 2008 Legacy Amendment and made possible by the Arts and Cultural Heritage Fund, the Minnesota Historical Society Traveling Exhibits Program provides an opportunity to visit your place in history without leaving home. Exhibits developed by the Minnesota Historical Society and partnering organizations feature free-standing displays, audiovisual and interactive components, and onsite and online educational programming.

Join Us at the Fair!

The Nicollet County Historical Society was organized August 22, 1928, when 96 members of the Old Settlers’ Association gathered for a picnic dinner in Floral Hall of the fairgrounds during the 1928 county fair. Help us celebrate at this year’s Fair August 10th through the 14th.

As usual, we’ll have an exhibit and friendly representatives to talk about local history, Society memberships, upcoming events, and more. If you’re interested in volunteering at our booth, please contact the Society at 507-934-2160 or ben@nchsmn.org. One- or two-hour shifts are available throughout the fair and we are flexible.

Member Discount at Lagers in St. Peter

In an effort to support our local history, I would like to pass on a program that I hope you will take advantage. If you visit Jeff Brand at the Lagers St. Peter store and make a new or used vehicle purchase, Brand will make a $100 contribution per unit in your honor to NCHS. Bargain vehicles and dealer trades from another store are exempt from this program. Please contact him for program details and to schedule an appointment.

Society Welcomes Madison Brockberg

NCHS Office Manager Jessica Brockberg and her husband Rick welcomed daughter Madison to the world May 14th at 12:02 p.m. She weighed 7 pounds 13.9 ounces and 20½ inches long. Congratulations Jessica and Rick!

Between 1850 and 1930 nearly 1.3 million Swedes came to America. By 1910 54 percent of Swedish immigrants and their children lived in the Midwest. That made places like Minnesota fertile ground for Swedish-dialect theater companies. One of those was run by Charles A. Lindholm. His production, “The Man from Minnesota” came to St. Peter in 1911 in association with the locally-based Engesser Circus. This poster is a remnant of the advertising campaign for that show 100 years ago. It can be viewed, along with over 1,200 other images, online at http://reflections.mndigital.org.

Minnesota Reflections is an online consortium of over 64,000 images from more than 120 Minnesota cultural institutions. Reflections is a project of the Minnesota Digital Library, a service of Minitex, with help from the Minnesota Historical Society, St. Cloud State University, and the University of Minnesota. It is funded through the Library Services and Technology Act and the Minnesota Clean Water, Land and Legacy Amendment. NCHS Director Ben Leonard has served on the MDL’s management committee since 2005.
In early June, a group of dedicated history buffs, educators, community leaders, and Cox House volunteers gathered to review and polish the final version of the 2011 Cox House Interpretive Plan. After seven months of research, analysis, and debate, the Interpretive Committee was ready to approve of the document that outlines the new vision for the Cox House.

“Interpretive Planning’ sounds wonkish and boring, but it is really a critical step for historic homes and museums,” says Nancy O’Brien Wagner, a principal at Bluestem Heritage Group in St. Paul, and a consultant for the project. The process allows the decision-makers to pause in order to review what the local audience wants, what the historic resource can offer, and what the best, most compelling, and most attractive message for the site can be. Interpretive Plans can be time-consuming and costly, especially for smaller organizations, but thanks to a Minnesota Historical and Cultural Grant funded by the Minnesota Land and Legacy Tax Act, the Nicollet County Historical Society was able to secure funding for the project.

During the process, the committee looked at ten different historic houses in the area that focused on a similar time frame and topics. For historic homes like the Cox house, the message often boils down to ‘someone who once lived here did something you should know about.’ Making your site stand out in such a market can be hard. In the case of the Cox House, the story has been focused on the problematic life of the father, E. St. Julien Cox. “He was most famous for the distinction of being an impeached district court judge, but that message isn’t the most compelling story,” says Wagner. Luckily, research uncovered other stories that are truly significant and compelling: daughter Irene was one of the first women to pass the bar, and daughter Lillien was also well-known for being the first female mayor in Minnesota, elected in St. Peter in 1921.

“Sometimes, the history that one generation hides is the history that another generation is drawn to most,” explains Wagner. In the case of the Cox family, daughter Irene was actually abandoned by her husband when her son was just one year old. “Though that information was hidden–and even unknown by the family for generations–it actually makes her accomplishments even more impressive. She was studying law, passing the bar, and working at the legislature while raising her son on her own. That’s the sort of detail that makes this family’s history come to life.”

“We’re very happy with the outcome,” says Benjamin Leonard, Director of the Nicollet County Historical Society. “The Cox House was home to a family. An important family, but individuals just like us–with talents, happy moments, victories, sad times, and personal failures. This project helped remind us that what makes the Cox family, and their house, a compelling place to visit–are those stories.”

Plant Sale Success Continues

The Society would like to especially thank the Cox House Committee, volunteers, Site Manager Richard Tostenson, donors, and patrons for another successful Cox House Plant Sale. We have not been blessed with the best weather so far in 2011. Many plants that are usually well out of the ground by May decided to sleep in this year.

That meant many hours of digging, separating, and repotting plants for our annual fundraiser were crammed into a couple of very long days for our extremely dedicated volunteers. It didn’t snow on the day of the plant sale, like it has in the not-so-distant past, but it would not be out of line to call

The Harkin Store is excited about the programs coming up for the rest of the season. The weather has not been the nicest on Sundays, but we still have the programs. We just change it up, sometimes we have it on the driveway or the porch or inside. We think that our programs are interesting and informative and just plain fun.

With the 4th of July coming, we are hoping that, that program will be happening. The New Ulm Battery will be firing the 1862 cannon very hour and half hour from 1 to 4 p.m. Also we will be serving watermelon and lemonade throughout the afternoon.

Our July 10th program is a combination of several things. The title is Wheat-Flour-Grasshoppers. Come see how they are connected. The program will be from 1 to 4.

Arnie and Marilyn Anderson will be performing their old time music for us on July 17th. We have lots of people come and enjoy the whole afternoon of music, some bring lawn chairs or blankets to sit on.

The Monsen Family Bluegrass are five children from Chaska that play a variety of instruments and also perform a variety of music. They will be at Harkin on July 24th from 1 to 4 p.m.

Christmas in July will be on July 31st. We decorate the store with greenery and the gift shop will have many gift ideas.

August 7th we are having the 32nd West Newton Day. Inviting descendents of settlers of West Newton to come and bring stories, pictures, or other information about their relatives. There is a list of relatives trying to find other relatives.

August 14th – TBA

August 21, the “Misfits” will be playing their variety of music from 1 to 4 p.m.

Old School Houses of Nicollet County will be on display including the private school that was in West Newton. The program is on August 28th.

The West Arrives at West Newton with John Koblas, author of Jesse James books and Lonesome Ron, singing and playing western music on September 4th.

September 11, we have activities to do with Grandparents or (parents). They are easy and fun.

Snakes, Snakes, Snakes arrive on September 18th. Tom Jessen brings his snakes for the afternoon. He answers any questions also.

Gail Ann Wood will be signing her book, Lizzie and the Prairie Fire from 1 to 4 p.m. on September 25th. She wrote about her grandmother who lived in Ivanhoe the same time as Laura Ingalls.

We will be glad to give you any information about West Newton and the Harkin Store if you come to visit us.

The 2011 summer season is off to a great start.

The May School Day event sponsored by the Friends of Fort Ridgely was attended by 265 students plus chaperones. Having good weather always helps to make the day more enjoyable for attendees and the presenters.

The programs at the commissary building have been well attended. The Minnesota State Park Open House day had a record number of visitors to the commissary. Ron Bolduan’s nature and history program had the classroom area full to capacity. Plans are to have Ron present another of his nature programs in September.

I hope that you have had a chance to see the insert from The Eagle Extra that chronicles the 100 years of Fort Ridgely State Park. Included in the insert besides the park history, is the programs listed for the rest of the 2011 season. NCHS and the Friends of Fort Ridgely have spent time and energy to prepare what we feel is a great list of events for the summer season. There is something of interest for all ages. The goal is to have wholesome family programs that entertain and also tell visitors about area history. The insert is available at the Treaty Site or more information about the programs is available on the NCHS website and the Minnesota DNR website (www.dnr.state.mn.us).

Drive over to west Nicollet County and enjoy nature and history at Fort Ridgely State Park and Historic Site during the lazy days of summer!

Board Member to Speak About New Book at Fort Ridgely

Nicollet County Historical Society Board Member Lori Ann Lahlum, an associate professor of history at Minnesota State University, Mankato, has edited a book on Norwegian settlement with Betty A. Bergland, professor of history at the University of Wisconsin-River Falls.

Dr. Lahlum will speak at the Fort Ridgely Commissary on July 16th. The event starts at 1:30 p.m. Admission required for non-members. For more info call (507) 426-7888, (507) 934-2160 or e-mail ben@nchsmn.org.

The history of Norwegian settlement in the United States has often been told through the eyes of prominent men, while the women are imagined in the form of O.E. Rølvaag’s fictionalized heroine Beret Holm, who made the best of life on the frontier but whose gaze seemed ever fixed on her long-lost home. The true picture is more complex. In an area spanning the Midwest and rural West and urban areas such as Seattle, Chicago, and Brooklyn,

A Fort is Needed

In 1851, Dakota Indian leaders signed two treaties with the United States, selling some 24,000,000 acres mostly in Minnesota. They agreed to move to two reservations along the Minnesota River. The treaties were ratified in June 1852.

Future governor, Henry Sibley, arrived at Mendota near Fort Snelling in 1834, as an employee of the American Fur Company. In his associations with the Dakota Indians, he gained experience in their culture and language.

In 1852, Sibley was a delegate to Congress from Minnesota Territory. On July 12, 1852, he wrote a letter to Major General Winfield Scott, General in Chief, USA, that a fort was needed on the Upper Minnesota River. Following are excerpts from Sibley's letter:

“The concentration of these powerful bands, and their removal from the region now occupied by them, require a corresponding change in the disposition of the military forces in that quarter.”

“...the Siouxs or Dakotas are the most powerful and warlike tribe on the continent. They are stretched over a thousand miles of country and wage interminable war with almost every other band with whom they are brought in contact. It is a fortunate circumstance, that no event has hitherto occurred to disturb the friendly feeling which exists between the whites and these Indians, and a continuance of this harmony may be anticipated, if a wise policy is pursued by the government.”

“Still it is highly expedient, and fact indispensable, that a respectable force would be preserved in the country for the protection of the settlers and of those officers entrusted with the charge of our Indian relations in that quarter, if, unhappily, any exigency should occur, or a spirit of disaffection spring up, to threaten the peace of the frontier.”

“At no point could such a force be stationed with so much advantage as at some spot near the lower line of the reservation made by the treaties, upon the Minnesota River...”

John LaBatte is an independent historian with relatives on both sides of the Dakota conflict. John has researched the Dakota War and surrounding events extensively, and has written a series of articles for the Fairfax Eagle Extra and five other area newspapers. This is one of those articles.

by John LaBatte

General Scott agreed. In the fall of 1852, Captain Dana and Colonel Lee were ordered to select a site for the new fort. They selected the present site located about 5 miles inside the eastern border of the Dakota Reservations and on the western edge of present day Nicollet County. It was rich in wood, grass and hay. It had a large spring of pure water nearby. Granite was found one-half mile to the west. It had a good steamboat landing on the river about one-half mile away. It was situated on a bluff about 200 feet above the river level.

But, their water supply was a half-mile away. They thought they were too high to dig for water. However, in 1896, water was found at 24 feet. Another serious problem was the site was surrounded on 2 sides by ravines within musket range of the fort. Post Sutler Benjamin Randall wrote, “It was such a place the Indians would have selected if they had contemplated its capture.”

Jefferson Davis, Secretary of War, named the new post Fort Ridgely in honor of Major Randolph Ridgely, a hero of the Mexican War who fell at the Battle of Monterey. It was Minnesota’s third military post. Fort Snelling and Fort Ripley were the other posts.

Construction on Fort Ridgely started in 1853. The site was about 330 miles from Fort Snelling by river; and by land, 120 miles. Fort Ripley was 140 miles to the north. The nearest towns, Traverse des Sioux and St. Peter were 40 miles away. The Lower Sioux Agency was 13 miles upriver. The Upper Sioux Agency was 40 miles upriver.

Bernadotte Lutheran Church

At a Glance...

Historical Marker Location: On County Road 10, about four miles east of Lafayette, Minnesota.

Little Known Fact: Between 1866 and 1870, Bernadotte Lutheran's congregation grew from 21 to 104 families.

Origins of Bernadotte Lutheran Church

Swedish Lutheran immigrant families, under the guidance of Rev. John Pehrson of Scandinavian Grove, founded New Sweden Church in 1866. Initially, the congregation met in local homes and a school house before building a wooden structure in 1872 for a cost of $1,000. In 1890, the congregation renamed the church Bernadotte Lutheran. Members dedicated the present Bernadotte Lutheran Church in 1897. The current brick building stands just east of where the original church structure stood. The stone foundation is comprised of local field rock.

Vogelpohl and Spaeth Pipe Organ When construction of the brick church ended in 1897, the church contained no pipe organ within the sanctuary. In the meantime, the Bernadotte Band led worship services. By February 1898, the Vogelpohl and Spaeth Organ Company of New Ulm completed and installed a 16-rank, 866-pipe tracker organ at a cost of $1,500. Craftsman Herman Henry Vogelpohl III guaranteed the 16’4” high, 12’1” wide and 10’5” deep organ to be first class and of the highest standard of excellence. The large pipes are made of ungalvanized zinc while the smaller ones are a combination of lead and tin. The wood pipes are made of pine. The ornate casework around the organ is solid oak.

For decades, the organ remained in nearly authentic condition. Vogelpohl and Spaeth created organs that relied on a hand-pumped bellow system to maintain the air pressure required to produce sound from the pipes. Although the church installed an electric blower to help maintain air pressure some years ago, the organist still required an attentive hand-pumper during services for much of the organ’s history. Recently, however, Bernadotte Lutheran installed an entirely electrical air pressure system and the organ is no longer manually pumped.

Interior Adornments

A large oil painting of Christ’s Resurrection hangs over the altar. It was revealed and dedicated in September 1898. Another smaller painting of The Institution of Holy Communion (more commonly known as The Last Supper) hangs below. Both were painted by Professor O. Grafstrom of Augustana College.

On May 5, the Connecting Nicollet County Local Leadership Program graduated its first class. Twenty-two participants from around Nicollet County were recognized at a ceremony and celebration at the Klossner House along with steering committee members and key sponsors of the program.

The goal of the county-wide leadership program is to help both current and emerging leaders better understand the dynamics of the community and the role of shared leadership in building healthy communities. Class members met for one full day each month, September through May, visiting each of the communities in Nicollet County. The nine session program offered individuals the opportunity to network, develop their leadership and facilitation skills, and gain an increased awareness of the resources in the county.

Participants learned about local issues such as green industries, health care, higher education, agriculture, media, county social services and law enforcement. They participated in leadership trainings on the topics of Understanding Your Personal Leadership Style, Developing Effective Committees and Boards, Navigating Conflict More Successfully, E-Communication, Non-verbal Communication Skills, Wellness and Stress Relief, Visionary Leadership, and Authentic Leadership.

Participants shared what they will take away from their experience in the program and how it will help them in their work and community life. Following is a sampling of responses:

“Views of leadership! New ways to move forward with my own leadership and ways to help others as well. Great networking connections for work and personal life.”

~ Sara Sletten, Administrative Assistant, Gustavus

“This program has renewed a confidence in me as a group member and leader. The leadership skill sessions have sharpened my ability to be a pivotal and efficient leader.”

~ Karl Struck, Traverse des Sioux Garden Center

“The program was very exciting in learning about all the different aspects of the local area including government, business, agriculture, recycling and history that drives our local community!”

~ Chad Salzwedel, Financial Advisor

Connecting Nicollet County was developed through a partnership of Nicollet County and University of Minnesota Extension’s Center for Community Vitality. It was funded in part by a grant from the Blandin Foundation along with support and in-kind contributions from over 60 local businesses, organizations, municipalities and individuals from throughout Nicollet County.

NCHS Director Ben Leonard served on the steering committee with NCHS Board member Bob Schabert. NCHS Board member Pam Morson was a graduate, along with several historical society members.

For information on applying for the 2011-2012 CNC program, contact Bob Schabert at 507-276-7919 or e-mail bbschabert@newuMTEL.net, or Catherine Rasmussen, U of M Extension, at 320-234-0437 or rasmu035@umn.edu.
What Happens if the State Shuts Down?

If the legislature and governor do not agree on a budget by June 30th, the Society will be forced to close its state-owned sites. That means Harkin Store, Fort Ridgely, and the walking trails at Traverse des Sioux will be closed indefinitely until a budget agreement is reached. The Treaty Site History Center will remain open and administrative staff will continue to work. Unfortunately staff at Harkin and Ridgely would be furloughed until sites re-open. Any programs at Harkin or Ridgely scheduled during a closure will be cancelled.

While closing sites is not something we choose, we are optimistic that any closure will be brief, and any disruption would be minimal. At the time of this printing we have no idea what will happen. Like the spring flooding, we should be prepared for the worst in case it happens, but hope for the best.

Please feel free to direct any questions to NCHS Director Ben Leonard at 507-934-2160 or ben@nchsmn.org. Thanks for your understanding and support.

May 14th lousy. Luckily the cold and rain didn’t dampen everyone’s spirits. The Cox House Committee and dedicated helpers still raised $1,300 to help preserve, promote, and interpret the E. St. Julien Cox House.

Thanks to all those that donated plants towards the sale. Without you, well, it wouldn’t happen. Thank you to Jesus Assembly of God Church for lending us one of their large tents used for Royal Family Kids’ Camp. We would have been much colder and wetter without it. Thanks to everyone who purchased plants at this year’s plant sale. We appreciate it more than we can say.

Norwegian American women found themselves in varied circumstances, ranging from factory worker to domestic, impoverished to leisureed. Offering a comprehensive, interdisciplinary approach, Norwegian American Women: Migration, Communities, and Identities considers the stories of this immigrant group through a gendered lens.

Nine noted scholars situate these women in the history, literature, politics, and culture of both their ancestral home and the new land, interpreting their multifarious lives and the communities they helped build. Pieces on wide-ranging topics by Betty A. Bergland, Laurann Gilbertson, Karen v. Hansen, Lori Ann Lahlum, Ann M. Legreid, Odd S. Lovoll, Elisabeth Lønnå, David C. Mauk, and Ingrid K. Urberg are book-ended by Elizabeth Jameson’s lively foreword and Dina Tolfsby’s detailed bibliography, comprising a collection that enlightens at the same time that it inspires further investigations into the lives of women in Norwegian America.

The book, published by the Minnesota Historical Society Press, is available at the Treaty Site History Center, Fort Ridgely, and Harkin Store gift shops. The e-book is also available online at Amazon.com and other vendors.

We are pleased to announce that NCHS has awarded Ted Moline Scholarships to two deserving Nicollet County High School Seniors. Mankato West student Sarah Miller and St. Peter High School’s Magdelena Morrow have each won a $500 award.

Ms. Morrow’s project traced the history of St. Peter’s Konsbruck Hotel building. She gathered photographs, researched primary sources, and conducted interviews. Ms. Miller produced an exhibit on the failed diplomacy of the U.S. Dakota War. She also competed in state history day where she received an honorable mention.

Ms. Morrow will be attending Tufts University in the fall and plans to major in History. Ms. Miller will attend Truman State University in Kirksville, Missouri and major in accounting.

Ted Moline was born July 21, 1915 in St. Paul and soon after his family moved to Baldwin, Wisconsin. He received his amateur radio operator license in 1934 and was an avid operator the rest of his life. After moving to St. Peter in 1937, Ted went to work for the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, and Omaha Railroad. Ted also served in the United States Army, retiring in 1971 as a Colonel. Ted passed away in August of 2005. He was an extremely generous man who loved local history. This scholarship honors Ted and his commitment to our mission.

The 2011 Ted Moline Scholarships are made possible by generous donations from retired St. Peter teacher William Harvey and an anonymous donor. We are extremely grateful for their leadership and support.
