Mr. and Mrs. Cox cordially invite you to attend the annual Christmas at the Cox House Open House. Richard Tostenson and the Minnehaha Questers Chapter of St. Peter have transformed the house into a Victorian holiday celebration. Costumed interpreters will portray the Cox family. Local musicians will play beautiful Christmas music and sing-a-longs are encouraged! Mulled cider and homemade cookies will be provided in the kitchen each afternoon. Join us on Saturday and Sunday, December 4th and 5th and Saturday and Sunday, December 11th and 12th from 1–4 p.m. each day.

Christmas at the Cox House is truly a St. Peter tradition. Admission is $4 for adults, $2 for 13–18 year olds and free for children 12 and under. As always, Nicollet County Historical Society members are free. If you would like more information, or have any questions, please contact 507-934-2160 or jessica@nchsmn.org.

Our guest musicians for the event include:
- Saturday, December 4: Paul and Avis McDaniel and family
- Sunday, December 5: “Heart Strings” Diana and Kenneth Stoll
- Saturday, December 11: Julie Fedeler and Judy McHarry, flute and piano
- Sunday, December 12: Wayne Schmidt, guitar

Historical Society’s Annual Meeting

The Nicollet County Historical Society’s annual meeting will be Sunday, January 16, 2011 at Gustavus Adolphus’ Jackson Student Union banquet hall. Dinner service will begin at 1 p.m., business meeting at 2:15 p.m., and program at 3 p.m.

We are honored and delighted to welcome Dr. William Lass as our keynote speaker. Dr. Lass is Professor Emeritus of History at Minnesota State University, Mankato, where he had taught Minnesota History for over 40 years. Dr. Lass was the Director of the Southern Minnesota Historical Center from 1969–1999. Dr. Lass has published over one hundred books, academic journal articles, reviews, and encyclopedia entries. Although he officially retired in 2002, Dr. Lass continues to write on Minnesota history, steamboats, and the trading practices between the American Indians and the settlers. In 2012 Minnesota History will feature Lass’s article detailing the various histories related to the events of 1862.

Dr. Lass has also recently completed a history of the 1851 Treaty of Traverse des Sioux, soon to be published by NCHS. The exciting history provides a thorough context to the treaty process and illuminates new details about the contentious ratification process that followed the signing. Anyone interested in the history of Minnesota won’t want to miss this lecture and the publication.

Cost for dinner and the program is just $15 for members, $20 for non-members, and $5 for those wishing to only attend the program. For details and registration call Jessica at 507-934-2160. Reservations (with form on page 16) with payment are due by January 7, 2011.

Director’s Column
There seems to be a lot to be thankful for this holiday season.
For starters I am thankful for the number of shopping days left until Christmas. 65 degree November afternoons didn’t do much for my sense of urgency. There’s still plenty of time though—and lines at local retailers are preferred to the log jams at the malls. My kids would be horrified if they knew how ill prepared I am.

Shopping seems pretty superfluous to any real reflection of thanks though—and I am thankful for so much. Nicollet County is truly a great place to live. I’ve called seven other cities home in my life so I feel I can say the previous statement on some authority. I shudder to think about giving up my three-minute commute, along with the great services, schools, and local government we have here. Seriously, it’s hard to imagine much better.

I have a wonderful family. They are more tolerant and flexible than anyone has any right to expect. They’ve endured too many late dinners and evening meetings to even count. Amy and the kids always seem to sally forth without me when they really shouldn’t have to. I appreciate them more than words can say.

I’m thankful for my friends. I’m glad they seem to find me far less annoying than I feel. To Michael, Kurt, Anders, Ed, Tim, Chris, Sarah, Drew, Dave, Alex, Kevin, and the whole lot of you—thanks for putting up with me.

The staff at the historical society is amazing. You could draw them up on paper and they wouldn’t turn out half as nice as they actually are.

Thanks to the NCHS Board for letting me do a job I love and regularly providing the paycheck I need. In the immortal words of Say Anything’s Lloyd Dobler, “I don’t want to sell anything, buy anything, or process anything as a career. I don’t want to sell anything bought or processed, or buy anything sold or processed, or process anything sold, bought, or processed, or repair anything sold, bought, or processed. You know, as a career, I don’t want to do that.”

I can’t imagine doing anything else, and I couldn’t wish for a better group of people to work for. I really mean that.

Thanks!

Ben Leonard, Director
The Society is teaming up with Minnesota State University–Mankato’s Water Resource Center to show the University of Minnesota’s documentary film Troubled Waters. Please join us at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, December 7th, at the Treaty Site History Center.

The film details the Minnesota and Mississippi Rivers, pollution, and the effect those waters have on the Gulf of Mexico. Surrounded in controversy after its initial release was delayed, Troubled Waters has generated a lot of debate among University faculty, students, scientists, the agricultural community, and regional media.

Mike Davis has worked for the Minnesota DNR since 1987 and specializes in freshwater mussel ecology, in particular on the Mississippi River. As part of the mussel conservation effort, Mike has played a major role in the plan to revive the endangered Higgins Eye mussel. Davis has conducted numerous mussel surveys across the Minnesota River Basin including setting up a long-term monitoring station on the Chippewa River.

This screening is free and open to everyone. We encourage everyone to take this special opportunity to learn more about our rivers, and ultimately, the communities we call home.

Water Resource Center staff, along with experts Carrie Jennings and Mike Davis, will lead audience discussion after the film.

Carrie Jennings is a Glacial Geologist with the Minnesota Geological Survey. Jennings is one of the top experts on glacial geology and great at giving easy-to-understand answers to all your questions. Recently she has applied her knowledge of the distribution of glacial sediment in Minnesota (as well as the history of landscape and river evolution) to better define sources of sediment to the modern river systems of Minnesota, most notably, the Minnesota River and its tributaries.
Films on First Thursdays

Our successful documentary film series continues through spring. The Nicollet County Historical Society, St. Peter Community and Family Education, St. Peter Food Co-op, Arts Center of Saint Peter, St. Peter Senior Center, St. Peter Public Library, River Rock Coffee, and St. Peter Recreation Department have teamed up to bring you five more films. Join us the first Thursday of every month through May at 7 p.m. at the senior Center, inside the St. Peter Community Center. Some films are serious, some are amazing, and a few are just plain weird.

Thurs., January 6, 7 p.m. Death of the Dream
Twin Cities Public Television presents Death of the Dream: Farmhouses in the Heartland. This film about the rural past was inspired by photographer and essayist William Gabler’s beautiful book of classic farmhouses, Death of the Dream, published by the Afton Historical Society Press. Part celebration and part bittersweet elegy the film provides a window towards the past, while looking towards the future. The film examines who we are today, reflects on how the family farm has changed, and explores where we are going as we near the end of the millennium. As eminent historian William Cronon says, “So much of who we are as a nation is linked to that rural vision that one can’t help feel both a sadness and sense of dilemma of what the role of rural America should be.” 60 minutes, Not Rated

Thurs., February 3, 2011, 7 p.m. Who the @#$&! is Jackson Pollock?
When Teri Horton bought a painting in a thrift shop for five dollars, she was stunned when a friend told her that it looked like an original Jackson Pollock and could be worth millions. Working with a leading forensic scientist, Teri learned that a fingerprint on the back of her canvas matched a fingerprint found on a can of paint in Jackson Pollock’s studio. More research showed that paint on the floor of Pollock’s studio matched the paint on Teri’s canvas. Realizing that a Pollock painting the size of hers was worth upwards of $50 million, Teri thought she had won the lottery. “Not so fast,” the art establishment answered, proclaiming her painting worthless. This documentary captures the 15-year debate between the world's most prestigious art collectors, authenticators and experts and the feisty, 73 year-old grandma who would not give up. 74 minutes, PG 13

Thurs., March 3, 2011, 7 p.m. King of Kong: Fistful of Quarters
A middle-school science teacher and a hot sauce mogul vie for the Guinness World Record on the arcade classic, Donkey Kong. Steve and Billy engaged in a cross-country duel to see who could set the high score and become The King of Kong. Along the way, both men learned valuable lessons about what it means to be a father, a husband, and a true champion discovering that you don’t always need to win to be a winner. 79 minutes, PG 13

Thurs., April 7, 2011, 7 p.m. I.O.U.S.A.
I.O.U.S.A. boldly examines the rapidly growing national debt and its consequences for the United States and its citizens. Burdened with an ever-expanding government and military, increased international competition, overextended entitlement programs, and debts to foreign countries that are becoming impossible to honor, America must mend its spendthrift ways or face an economic disaster of epic proportions. Throughout history, the American government has found it nearly impossible to spend only what has been raised through taxes. The film follows former U.S. Comptroller General David Walker as he criss-crosses the country explaining America’s unsustainable fiscal policies to its citizens. Pointedly topical and consummately nonpartisan, I.O.U.S.A. drives home the message that the only time for America’s financial future is now. 85 minutes, PG

Thurs., May 5, 2011, 7 p.m. Which Way Home
2010 Oscar Nominee for “Best Documentary Feature.” “Which Way Home follows the stories of several children attempting to illegally cross the Mexican border into the United States by way of riding on the tops of trains. ... From the boys and girls riding the trains to the kids who’ve already been caught and are on their way back home, the film brings us everything we’d expect from a solid, well-made documentary—injecting passion, honesty and heart into a topic that certainly needs more attention drawn to it. Which Way Home is a truly captivating documentary that doesn’t carry an agenda; it doesn’t ask for you to adopt a Mexican teenager or send money to help these kids cross the border. It simply drops itself into the middle of a growing issue in Mexico, documents every square inch of the situation and leaves you to carry on the rest of your day.” NR, not suitable for viewers under 17

The Society is again offering the $1,000 Ted Moline Scholarship for post-secondary education to 2011 graduating High School seniors residing in Nicollet County. The scholarship will be awarded to the student who demonstrates the greatest contribution to the discovery, preservation, and/or dissemination of county history.

Ted Moline was born July 21, 1915 in St. Paul and soon after his family moved to Baldwin, Wisconsin. He received his amateur radio operator license in 1934 and was an avid operator the rest of his life. After moving to St. Peter in 1937, Ted went to work for the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, and Omaha Railroad. Ted also served in the United States Army, retiring in 1971 as a Colonel. Ted passed away in August of 2005. He was an extremely generous man who loved local history. This scholarship honors Ted and his commitment to our mission.

The 2011 Ted Moline Scholarship is made possible by generous donations from retired St. Peter teacher William Harvey and an anonymous donor. We are extremely grateful for their leadership and support.

Students wishing to compete for this year’s scholarship must create a significant project that contributes to the preservation and/or understanding of Nicollet County history. This could include an oral history.

The Society has teamed up with the St. Peter Herald and Lafayette-Nicollet Ledger to start saving newspapers in PDF format. The Minnesota Historical Society closed their microfilm lab last year. They continue to save hard copies of each Minnesota newspaper, but it’s difficult to make those accessible to researchers. The short term solution is to do it ourselves. The Society purchased external hard drives, and the newspapers have agreed to start storing issues on them. Every few months we’ll collect the drives and save the files on our server at the History Center where they’ll be available for researchers. Eventually there will be a long-term preservation option, but for now this is the best local option. We’d like to thank the Ledger and Herald for helping us. Their staffs have enough to do to produce the papers we want to save. It’s heartening to know they feel a sense of history. Special thanks to Ruth Klossner and Ed Lee for making this happen.
Possible Partnership at Fort Ridgely Discontinued

Many members may be aware of the proposed plan to share the Commissary building with DNR staff. The proposed changes would have meant thousands of dollars for preserving the Commissary building and Fort site, as well as updated and much more efficient heating, air conditioning, and electrical systems. For NCHS operation of Fort Ridgely it would have also meant the opportunity to work with DNR staff to keep the facility open more days per week all year ‘round.

There were members of the public who did not feel the benefits above outweighed potential harm to the site and state park operations. This stood in contrast to staff of the Minnesota Historical Society and Department of Natural Resources who felt the project would not damage the historic integrity of the site and instead contribute to the long-term sustainability of both Fort Ridgely State Park Historic Site. This lack of understanding and agreement ultimately led to the project’s cancellation. In late September the DNR and MHS issued this joint statement:

“The Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and Minnesota Historical Society staff have spent considerable time in recent months working with community members to create a plan and design for improvements to the CROSSING Possible Partnership at Fort Ridgely Discontinued

Fort Ridgely. As our staff have spent more time in discussions, it has become increasingly clear that there is not a solution that will garner widespread community support. This lack of consensus, coupled with the clear legislative mandate that funds from the 2010 capital budget bill are to be spent as soon as possible, in most cases within the current fiscal year, has led us to the conclusion that we will not be able to spend appropriated funds in a timely manner on improvements to the State Park and Historic Site at Fort Ridgely. Therefore, we are discontinuing the current planning and design work on public service improvements to Fort Ridgely State Park and Historic Site.”

This decision won’t mean big changes for Ridgely. NCHS will continue to offer programs, tours, and the Commissary’s exhibit experience. We had a great season and are excited for 2011. What this does mean is that we won’t be able to greatly expand programs, hours, and options next season. We face record budget deficits and an uncertain future in Minnesota. In this landscape we feel lucky to be able to maintain current program levels.

NCHS especially thanks the St. Peter United Way for 2011 general operating support.
Changing Sites

The visitor season may be over for our historic sites, but the activity continues. The warm fall weather has allowed the Minnesota Historical Society and their contractors to get a lot done.

At Harkin Store, the handicap accessible lift has been installed. The store is now totally ADA accessible for the first time. Work will continue on the Harkin staircase and a few last details around the house exterior.

Fort Ridgely recently received a new cedar shake roof on the Commissary building. The Minnesota Historical Society had planned to replace the roof this year, but hail damage this summer made the work imperative. In addition to the roof the chimneys were repaired and tuck-pointed. A new trail reconstructing the parade grounds around the fort’s interior is planned for 2011.

Traverse des Sioux State Historic Site has received some TLC as well. Nick Gansen and his volunteer crew (see article), spent many hours rehabilitating the west Treaty Rock park unit, located behind Dranttel’s Sales and Service. The St. Peter Fire Department burned most of the prairie to the north of the History Center earlier this fall.

Richard Tostenson has taken the Cox House to new heights this fall. The interior has been redecorated, additional artifacts from the NCHS collections are now displayed, and lots of new holiday decorations have been purchased. All of this helps take the house back to the Victorian era. Major changes are still ahead to make the Cox House an even better place to enjoy a program, special event, or facility rental.

Looking for a book or unique gift item for that special someone this holiday season? Don’t forget to include the Treaty Site History Center in your holiday shopping plans. We have a selection of local history books and memoirs. Will Weaver’s new book The Last Hunter follows his own family hunting traditions—it’s the perfect gift for the outdoorsmen in your family. Maybe they’d prefer The Great Minnesota Fish Book recently published by the University of Minnesota Press. Stunning artwork and informative entries on every kind of Minnesota fish make it an indispensable guide for any fisherman. You’ll also find one-of-a-kind sculptures by local artist Arnie Lillo, and special Wood Lake prints by David Geister. Members get a 10 percent discount every day, and all proceeds directly benefit the Society. The shop is open Tuesday through Saturday 10 a.m.–4 p.m., and Sundays 1–4 p.m.
Society Partners with St. Peter’s River Rock Coffee

The Society and River Rock Coffee have forged a lasting partnership that goes far beyond light roast and hermits. Early next year NCHS and River Rock are coming together to offer St. Peter something it sorely needs—a book store! River Rock’s remodeling plans include a joint effort to offer customers a chance to expand their minds as well.

“The Society and River Rock really value customer service,” says NCHS Director Ben Leonard. “We feel the same way about books. We won’t compete with Barnes and Noble or the Internet. But, we can hand sell select books that we feel are a great read, and that you might not otherwise find out about.”

Don’t come in looking for the latest John Grisham book—we won’t have it. We will have a great boutique inventory of local fiction, regional history, laugh-out-loud memoirs, and social justice books. Our selection comes complete with personal recommendations just for you from caring staff and community members. Look for us in early 2011!

Fall Floods Create History Island!

A freak fall flood at the end of September turned the Treaty Site History Center into an island. Before the building was constructed fill was added to raise the ground three feet above the 500 year flood level. Those engineers knew what they were doing! Photographs show the water got breathtakingly close, but flood waters could have risen another six to twelve inches before reaching the inside. Director Ben Leonard donned waders, forded water up to his thighs, and checked on the building every few hours.

NCHS does have an emergency and disaster plan. The file server and select archival collections were removed early on Sunday. The river crested on the evening of Monday, September 27th.

The Society received no damage but did pick up a few stories that are fun to tell at parties.
The Society has many things to be thankful for this season. 2010 was another excellent year for the Society. It’s heartening to know that even in tough economic times thousands of visitors still paid admission to our sites, hundreds of you renewed your memberships, and Nicollet County continued its unwavering support.

We feel our mission has never been more important than right now. In times of uncertainty, The Society is here to provide historical perspective, empathy, and understanding. The Society is serving more people over the past few years than we ever have before.

Financially the Society remains vibrant but we have not been unscathed. Before we step foot into 2011, we have already lost $10,000 in revenue for next year—roughly four percent of our budget. Our utility costs and other fixed expenses continue to rise. Without new revenue we will have to start cutting services—the same services that demand has never been higher for.

We know that many families out there are in a similar position. As a non-profit we try to offer free opportunities to learn about their past. Many of the fees we do charge remain well below our costs and are accessible to as many folks as possible.

If you can help, please consider a tax-deductible donation to NCHS this holiday season. If you have friends or relatives interested in history, encourage them to join. The problems we face are not insurmountable by any means, but they can’t be fixed by doing nothing.

Thanks for your friendship and support. We sincerely appreciate it. Have a very happy holidays.
The Minnesota Historical Society recently awarded two Minnesota Historical and Cultural Heritage Grants to the Society. NCHS Director Ben Leonard commented, “We’re extremely excited and grateful to have the financial opportunity to complete these two much needed projects.” Coupled with a successful request earlier in 2010, NCHS received three Cultural Heritage Grants for a total of $14,611.

A $7,000 grant will allow the Society to work with Bluestem Heritage Group to develop a formal interpretive and business plan for the Cox House. The award dovetails nicely with previous funding to reinvigorate the House and its programming provided by the Carl and Verna Schmidt Foundation. Bluestem will provide a market analysis, mediated stakeholder meetings, and research. The resulting plan will provide a blueprint for further program development, interpretation, and facility use.

The second project in the NCHS archives will be funded through a $6,911 award. The Society will now be able to complete the archival storage project begun with a similar grant several years ago. The new funding will purchase a second set of track shelving, additional flat storage, and lots of acid-free storage materials. The result will mean that the bulk of NCHS archival collections are stored according to professional standards, plus there will be more room for future growth, and items will be easier to locate for researchers. “This project desperately needed to be done,” stated Director Leonard. “This shelving will still be in use decades from now. This is truly a Legacy project—preserving our collections for future generations. Our archives storage space will go from being a liability to one of our greatest assets.”

Minnesota Historical and Cultural Heritage Grants are made possible by the Minnesota Legislature from the Arts and Cultural Heritage Fund created with passage of the Clean Water, Land and Legacy Amendment to the Minnesota Constitution in November 2008. The grants are awarded to support projects of enduring value for the cause of history and historic preservation across the state.

“It is wonderful to see so many communities and local organizations benefitting from the Historical and Cultural Heritage Grants,” said Britta Bloom berg, deputy state historic preservation officer. “Minnesotans should be proud of the unprecedented opportunities these grants provide for organizations to preserve and share our history and cultural heritage. The impact of projects supported by Historical and Cultural Heritage Grants will be felt throughout the state for many years to come.”

The Society awarded a total of $6.75 million in Historical and Cultural Heritage Grants to nonprofit and educational organizations, government units and tribes during the 2010 and 2011 fiscal years for projects of enduring value for the cause of history and historic preservation across the state. Grants are available in three tiers: Small or “Fast Track” grants of $7,000 or less, Mid-Size grants between $7,000 and $50,000, and Large grants of more than $50,000. For more information, including application deadlines, visit www.mnhs.org/legacygrants.

The Society would like to thank our legislators, Senator Kathy Sheran, and Representatives Terry Morrow and Kathy Brynaert; along with the Minnesota Historic Resources Advisory Committee, Minnesota Historical Society, and the taxpayers of Minnesota for providing this opportunity through the Clean Water, Land and Legacy Amendment passed in 2008.
The Allen A Company was founded in Kenosha Wisconsin in 1830. Originally a tannery, the company grew to be the largest of its kind in the world. At its peak one thousand men and women processed one million hides per year. The company started manufacturing hosiery in 1912. By 1928 2,300 employees manufactured underwear and hosiery for the company in Kenosha, Sheboygan, and Bennington, Vermont. Allen A’s workforce comprised about ten percent of Kenosha’s factory workers. That same year the company announced a one million dollar investment in knitting machinery that would further industrialize the manufacturing process, speed up production, and decrease the number of workers. That, along with wage disputes, and growing tension between the union and management, led to one of the most bitter and violent strikes in Wisconsin history.

That's a lot to learn from a pair of underwear.

The Society especially thanks Nick and all his volunteers for the incredible amount of work they put into cleaning up the Treaty Rock portion of the Traverse des Sioux State Historic Site. Because of Nick’s effort and initiative the park is once again a great place to take a stroll, see restored native prairie, and learn more about the 1851 Treaty signing. The Treaty Rock unit doesn’t get as much attention as the larger site north of the Treaty Site History Center, but thanks to Nick and his friends, it received the attention and TLC it needed. Thanks Nick!

With the help from the Scouts of Troop 58 and their parents, I have been working at the Treaty Rock Site. We have accomplished almost all of the goals I had set for my Eagle project, but now the weather is working against us.

We have worked on three Saturday afternoons for a few hours each. I think what has been done up to this point has really improved the park.

So far we have cut down and cleaned up several dead trees and cleared a lot of brush, debris and garbage. We spread gravel along the walking paths and also in the parking lot. There is actually a cement border around the parking lot that you can now see. I enlisted the help of my Grandpa, who mowed the entire park for us.

The park bench was taken apart, scraped and painted. It will be put back together to provide a nice spot to sit at the park. The entryway to the park was one of the last items we needed to work on and the snowy weather has hampered our efforts. We will be cleaning and trimming that area also.

In my Eagle project outline I had to list who would benefit from my project and how they would benefit. I said the St. Peter community would benefit from having the park be a more desirable destination. I think we are getting there. Hopefully we will have another weekend to allow us to finish, otherwise we will continue this spring and complete the project.
Last newsletter we told you about an exciting upcoming collaboration. The Society and the Arts Center of Saint Peter, in cooperation with the Minnesota Humanities Center, explore our musical heritage as it hosts the local showing of New Harmonies: Celebrating American Roots Music, a Smithsonian Institution traveling exhibition. New Harmonies will be on view at the Arts Center of Saint Peter from April 30th to June 11, 2011.

New Harmonies tells the American musical story through photographs, instruments, lyrics and artist profiles. Although “roots music” is a relatively new term that generally applies to forms of folk music, its influences run deep throughout American culture and can be heard in today’s commercial country, gospel, pop and hip-hop genres. The exhibition not only describes the work of well-known folk, gospel, country and blues artists like Ma Rainey, B.B. King, Jimmie Rodgers, the Carter Family, Mahalia Jackson, Woody Guthrie, and Joan Baez that have inspired generations of musicians, but also captures the spirit of musical styles that are at the heart of our local heritage – Tejano, zydeco, polka, Cajun, conjunto, and klezmer. New Harmonies focuses on how roots music gives Americans a soundtrack and a voice for their stories.

The nationally traveling exhibit is part of Museum on Main Street, a unique collaboration between the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service (SITES), state humanities councils across the nation, and local host institutions. To learn more about New Harmonies and other Museum on Main Street exhibitions, visit www.museumonmainstreet.org. New Harmonies has been made possible in St. Peter, Minn. by the Minnesota State Humanities Council. New Harmonies is part of Museum on Main Street, a collaboration between the Smithsonian Institution and the Federation of State Humanities Councils. Support for Museum on Main Street has been provided by the United States Congress.

Bashful Brother Oswald. For nearly 60 years, Bashful Brother Oswald (1911–2002) was one of the most influential and talented dobro players in country music. For the majority of his career, he was the dobroist for Roy Acuff’s Smokey Mountain Boys.

the CROSSING 13
Santa Claus appeared in person at the Methodist Church on Christmas Eve. The cheery old gentleman came through the window well clad in furs, and proceeded to take the presents from the Christmas tree which had been previously prepared, and distribute them among the children. It was a very happy time.

Another Santa Claus attended the distribution at the Christian Church on the following evening, where a beautiful evergreen arch was constructed, from which the presents were suspended. The presents were very numerous and many of them quite valuable. The old as well as the young folks seemed equally happy.

Some who are a little doubtful as to the usual notions of Santa Claus, go so far as to say that Oliver Andrews personated the old gentleman at the Methodist Church, and that Henry Moll was inside of his furs at the Christian Church. We do not know how it was.

At the Episcopal Church early services were held. The church was beautifully decorated and the services impressive. Rev. Mr. Livermore made a distribution of presents to the small children, when they departed full of glee.

Christmas services were also held at the Catholic and Swede churches, which were both tastefully ornamented with Evergreen boughs.
